There was once an old man. He was very old, at least a thousand years old. He lived in a cave alone. People from all over the village came to visit him because he was wise and helpful.

One day, a young man came to see this wise old man. "Oh, wise father, I want to be useful to people. I want to serve them all my life. How can I do this?" said the young man.

"That's very good," said the old man. "Here is a magic box. Do not open it until you reach home. If you open it now something will happen to you."

"Thank you, wise father," said the young man. He took the box and left. When he was out of the cave, he stopped. "What is in the box? I'm going to look," he said to himself.

He opened the box and at once he turned into a coconut tree. That was his punishment for disobeying the old man, but he still had his wish because the coconut tree is very useful to people.
